

Much like cable or satellite T.V., it is my choice to pay every month for a service that I find valuable to me. As a traveler, it is invaluable to be able to get instant traffic and weather exactly where I need it. Regular radio is too slow to realize that as a consumer, I want my radio for music and information, not to hear some dj talk about personal politics or a viagra commercial. It is my right to buy XM, and it is XM's right to provide my demands of music, traffic, weather, and news.

John Allen